

Outdoor Power Blowing

Overview

In the past, we recommended gas blowers, like the Stihl BR 350, but given the consistent advancements in cordless technology, these gas models no longer make sense to us. Gas models are loud, they cra.

Where can I buy a leaf blower?

Shop for leaf blowers at Best Buy. With a wide selection of electric leaf blowers, you can find options for corded, cordless, vacuum leaf blowers & more.

What is the best electric leaf blower?

There are many excellent electric leaf blowers on this list, but the cordless Ryobi P21801 18V One+ 280 CFM Jet Fan Blower Kit is a standout for how accurately it blew leaves and other debris to a given spot with just the right amount of power.

How do I choose a leaf blower for my yard?

One of the most important aspects to consider when choosing a leaf blower for your yard is its motor speed. This will help determine if the leaf blower is powerful enough to move leaves and other debris around your yard. To decipher the speed, look for miles per hour (mph) and cubic feet per minute (cfm) listed in the product description.

What is the quietest leaf blower?

The Dewalt DCBL722P1 20V Max Brushless Cordless Battery-Powered Leaf Blower is the quietest model on our list at just 87 decibels. Our overall best, the Ryobi 18V ONE+ 280 CFM Jet Fan Blower Kit, was the loudest at 107 decibels. If you plan to use your leaf blower regularly, consider the weight of the unit.

Should you buy a battery-powered leaf blower?

Wider nozzles move more lightweight material, but narrow nozzles do a better job with heavier debris. Some leaf blowers even come with leaf vacuum conversion kits that can suck up and mulch dry leaves. If you are shopping for a battery-powered leaf blower, be sure to consider the other tools from that brand that run on the same batteries.

Are gas-powered leaf blowers worth it?

Even as battery power encroaches on the power and performance of gas engines, gas-powered leaf blowers still have a variety of roles to fill. Whether it's the cost savings, longer runtime with less downtime, or a longer tool life, the Stihl BG 56 C-E gas leaf blower is one of the best handheld options around.
